

Through a recognition of various obstacles
Preventing one from living a quality of life
Which naturally resonates with one's unique
Outlook of the world will eventually contribute
Towards a growing sense of internal friction
That which obstructs the desire to expand
Beyond the limits of societal boundaries
Creates a degree of separation as a result
The internal friction stemming from a division
Of that which gives life a true sense of purpose
That which provides an authentic connection
With a source of high vibrational energy
The rift between the life one currently lives
And the life one naturally aspires to contributing
To a form of division within the subconscious
Unless an individual seeks to bridge the gulf
That exists between the ideal version of reality
And the existence one experiences daily
The internal division will eventually erode
The underlying foundation of one's fortitude

